Gen. Light Appointed Ohio Draft Chief

FAILS TO PASS PHYSICAL EXAM FOR U. S. ARMY

Adjutant General Retains Title, Prepares Set-Up For Conscription.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Governor Bricker today formally nominated State Adjutant General Gilson D. Light as selective service director for Ohio to set the state's military draft machinery rolling into high gear.

The nomination goes to President Roosevelt, who is expected to make the appointment official without any delay.

General Light, who also was commanding officer of the Ohio national guard, became available for the draft post when he failed to pass physical examinations to qualify him for service with the guard in a year's federal training beginning Oct. 15

As head of the Ohio draft machinery, he will direct the registration of 896,000 Ohioans between the ages of 21 and 36 on Oct. 16 preliminary to selective conscription for military service.

His appointment will speed up preparations for the registrations. Governor Bricker is expected to begin appointing local five-member draft boards within the next two weeks.

General Light will retain his title as adjutant general, receiving no additional compensation as draft chief Brig. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, state highway director, was regarded as the likely successor to Light as commander of the Ohio guard.

He and two other brigadier generals eligible for the command passed the physical tests given at Fort Hayes Tuesday.

The other eligibles are: Generals William L. Marlin, commander of the 166th field artillery and Ludwig S. Connelly, commander of the 73rd infantry brigade.

Brigadier General Newell C. Bolton, commander of the 54th cavalry brigade, failed to pass the physical test.

Letters went out today to the common pleas and probate judges of the 88 counties asking them to collaborate with some person

Big Delegation Goes to Columbus as Major Grid Machines Swing Into Action for Football Season.

A large crowd was on hand today for the Ohio State-Pittsburgh game at Columbus as major college grid machines swung into action in opening games on all fronts.

The Buckeyes, a favorite to turn back the Panthers, were to play before an expected crowd of 50,000 at Columbus today.

In high school games last night, the Mansfield Tygers upset a veteran Elyria high combine, 7 to 6, before approximately 3,500 fans at Stadium field, and Marion St. Mary's broke Crestline high's 10-game winning streak with a thrilling 20 to 6 victory at Crestline.

Ten other contests pit Ohio teams against out-of-state foes. They are: Detroit Tech at Toledo. Arkansas Tech at John Carroll. Bluffton at Grand Rapids. Manchester (Ind.,) at Wooster. U. of Louisville at Cincinnati. Washington and Jefferson at Mount Vernon. Assumption (Canada) at Kent State. De Sales at Ball state. Akron at Colgate and Marietta at Georgetown.

Only night games are the Louisville-Cincinnati and Capital Kenyon tussels.

Four games were played last night.

Findlay came from behind in a "movie thriller" finish to score two touchdowns in the fourth quarter and defeat Ohio Northern, 14 to 12, in an Ohio conference engagement.

Kidnaper Would Plead to 'Get It Over With' Quickly.

REDWOOD CITY, Calif.—(UP)—Wilhelm Jakob Muhlenbroich wants to plead guilty Monday to the kidnaping of three-year-old Marc De Tristan, jr., his jailers reported today. They said the 44-year-old German alien had indicated his desire "to get it over with."

It was a week ago yesterday that Muhlenbroich grabbed the child from the arms of his nurse at Hillsborough and dropped a note demanding $100,000 ransom. Two lumbermen captured him Sunday.

The San Mateo county grand jury yesterday indicted him on charges of breaking the California "little Lindbergh law. The maximum sentence he can receive under it would be life imprisonment without possibility of parole.

FINDS OFFICE SAFE LOOTED

Clerk Discovers $170 Missing From Insurance Firm; Police Probe Mystery Angles.

The office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company in the Walpark building was entered last night and $170 taken from a safe, police reports said today.

Police said the looting occurred under mysterious circumstances. None of the office doors showed a forcible entry and the combination of the safe had not been tampered with.

The robbery was discovered about 8 a. m today by Mrs. Marie Thatcher, 58 Massa avenue, a clerk, when she opened the safe and found one of the cash boxes missing.

The cash box looted of the money was found lying on a counter in the office. Several checks and money orders were left in the container. The money, employes said, represented yesterday's office collections.

Patrolmen Russell Miles and George Yoakum reported that entrance was apparently gained with a pass key.

Mrs. Thatcher told the officers that she locked the safe when she closed the office about 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

William Seward, district manager for the company, who returned this morning from Columbus where he had attended a meeting, said the loss was covered by insurance.

Neophite Hunter Gets 'Limit' But Not In Squirrels

County Game Protector C. L. Kimmel made a strong bid for the best squirrel hunting yarn of the season today.

This is his story:

He took a friend who had never hunted squirrels before on a hunting excursion. He directed him to a woods and described exactly what a squirrel looked like, and then left to hunt in another woods.

Later Kimmel heard his companion's gun fire four times. Thinking his friend had bagged the limit, he returned to the other woods to view the results of the shooting.

Instead of squirrels, the man had three dead chipmunks and a weasel.

2 LOSE LIVES, 5 OTHERS HURT IN ACCIDENTS

New London and Ashland Men Die of Injuries Sustained In Auto Mishaps.

WATCH TRAFFIC ON 42

Highway Patrol Posts Extra Guard on Highway as Grid Fans Flock to Columbus.

Two men were dead today of injuries received in automobile accidents in the Richland county area during the week, while five others were injured, none seriously, in the Richland vicinity yesterday.

The dead are Cliff Cowie, 55, of New London, who died yesterday afternoon at the New London hospital, and Joseph Lash, 65, of Ashland, who died at Samaritan hospital, Ashland, last night.

Cowie suffered severe lacerations and an internal injury in a two-car collision south of New London Thursday. Five others, including four women, were also seriously injured in the accident.

Lash sustained fractured ribs, collapse of the left lung, and a brain concussion when his vehicle collided with a truck on Route 42, east of Ashland, Tuesday.

With heavy traffic jamming Route 42 today as football fans from this vicinity headed for the Ohio State-Pittsburgh game, highway patrolmen were patroling the highway between here and Columbus in an effort to keep traffic dangers at a minimum.

Injured in traffic accidents in the city and treated in General hospital last night were Charles Dennis, 55, East Sixth street, and Frank Isabell, 31, of Fredericktown. Both were treated for lacerations and released last night, hospital officials stated today.

Dennis was injured last night when he was thrown from a truck which collided with a passenger vehicle at the corner of Foster and East Third streets.

Alex Mason, 378 East Third street, driver of the truck in which Dennis was a passenger, and Richard Anderson, 185 Cleveland avenue, driver of the other automobile, were uninjured.

Isabell sustained injuries when a tractor and trailer, driven by Marshall F Cordroy, Columbus, collided with an automobile driv-

Rescue Vessel Reaches Boat Stricken Off Georgia.

THOMASTON, Me. — (UP) — A rescue ship, identified as the S. S. Malabar, reached the sinking freighter Alice Tebb of Aberdeen, Wash., 70 miles off Savannah, Ga., shortly after 9 a. m (EST) today, four hours after the stricken craft's SOS crackled over the air waves.

Seams have opened and need assistance," was the message radioed by the Alice Tebb at 6:20 a. m.

At the time the Malabar reached the freighter, wallowing as water poured through the parted seams, radio signals became dull. New England stations reported, and whether the crew would stand by or abandon ship was not known here.

Neutrals Told To 'Mind Your Own Business'

Germans Declare New Alliance Opposes Any Material Aid to Great Britain And China; British Beat Back Powerful Air Attack.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—The three signatories to the German-Italian-Japanese military pact have agreed on the area in which the Red Star of Soviet Russia is to be the controlling symbol, the authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, said today. The three powers, which have agreed already to the precise "spaces" in Europe, Africa and Asia in which they are to have the final word, have agreed on Russia's sphere "so that there can be no question of encroachment in foreign spaces by these powers," the commentary said.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
(UP Foreign News Editor)

The British beat back powerful German air attacks today as Nazis warned the United States and Soviet Russia against attempting to change the outcome of conflict in Europe and Asia by increasing material aid to Great Britain and China.

The warning, describing the new triple alliance among Germany, Italy and Japan as a "red light" cautioning neutrals to mind their own business, appeared likely to apply in particular to American reinforcement of the British air strength.

Experts were generally agreed that the final trend of war in Europe depended on air power. The British reported 133 Nazi planes shot down in 24 hours, the Germans reported 101 British craft destroyed.

The steadily mounting tempo of aerial bombing of Germany and the stubbornness of British defenses gave special point to the Nazi spokesman's explanation of the new triple alliance as it affects both America and Russia.

The sale of 50 United States destroyers to Great Britain, he pointed out, was not important in regard to the outcome of the war. Nor, he added, is Russia's limited aid to China of decisive nature on the struggle in the Far East.

Therefore, such material aid to Britain and China does not come within the scope of the new three-power agreement pledging Japan, Germany and Italy to fight as a common foe any nation that interferes in their program for "new orders" in Europe, Asia and Africa.

On the other hand, it was estimated, any material aid that might have a decisive effect on the outcome of the war or tend to prolong the conflict would be in an entirely different category.

Thus the dispatch of American-built airplanes on a big scale to Britain might be of utmost importance in the trend of the war and might be regarded by the Nazis as affecting the final outcome.

Nazis also sought to reassure South America that Germany has no plans for interference in the western hemisphere, but the position of Russia remained the biggest question mark and potentially the most important factor in the creation of totalitarian "new orders."

Moscow published news of the new alliance but was strictly silent in regard to its importance to the Soviet Union. In the Far East, however, the Japanese were reported to be attempting to get to-

COUNTER: U. S. Meets Axis Alliance With Latin Tie-Up

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Faced by the German-Japanese-Italian pact, the administration today planned a series of counter moves to bring about closer co-operation among the United States, Great Britain and the Latin-American states.

Most important of these was a series of military staff talks to be held between the U. S. general staff officers and military delegations from Latin-American countries who will visit this country in October and November.

They will be shown the best that America has to offer in long-range bombers and speedy pursuit planes. These will include not only the newest types of heavy bombers—mightiest of land planes—but also new 400-mile-per-hour pursuit ships.

Meanwhile, indicating the senate's staunch support of Secretary of State Hull's program of Pan-American solidarity, that body approved the Havana convention, establishing a commission of American states to take over control of territories in the western hemisphere belonging to Great Britain, France and Holland in case they should be seized by Germany.

Sen. Key Pittman (D. Nev.), chairman of the senate foreign relations committee said:

"The senate's immediate and unanimous ratification of the Havana convention conclusively proves that there is a solidarity in this hemisphere.

"It minimizes the effect of the

COSTLY: British Say Nazis Lose 133 Planes on Friday

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—German bombers struck at London today in a mid-morning raid after a furious overnight assault that wound up three successive weeks of relentless air siege of the capital.

RAF fighter planes immediately swarmed up to intercept the first raiders and after a short time Londoners emerged from their shelters ready for another nerve taut day of intermittent alarms.

The British said the overnight raids against London and towns of England, Scotland and Wales had cost the Germans heavily.

They estimated that the Nazis lost 133 planes yesterday, bringing their total losses for September to more than 1,000 for the second successive month.

The force of the latest air blows at Britain was illustrated by reports of observers that at least 1,000 German planes were launched at London alone yesterday. One great wave of raiders seen trying to smash through the Kent coast defense apparently included 300 bombers and an escort of nearly 500 fighting Messerschmitts.

Large squads of firemen and volunteers were credited with extinguishing most of London's fires within half an hour.

But London, while still the bullseye, was only part of the Nazi target, and raiders attacked objectives in scattered section of Scotland and Wales and hit at almost every part of England.

Two towns in the industrially important Midlands were bombed. For one it was the first raid of the war.

The air ministry, meanwhile,

Festival to Give High School Band Fund $200 or More

The Fourth street festival will net the Mansfield high school band uniform fund $200 or possibly $300, it was estimated today by George Satterlee, festival committee chairman.

All local profits from the fair will be turned over to the band for its uniform fund and Satterlee said today that while definite figures would not be available until tonight, he believed the profits would be sufficient to give the band a sizable check.

The festival which closes at midnight tonight, opened Wednesday and was held in celebration of the opening of Fourth street between Diamond and Mulberry street after having been closed all summer for paving.

The street will be cleaned and ready for traffic by Sunday morning, Satterlee said.

Wendell Willkie Carries Campaign Into New York

ENDS WESTERN STUMP JAUNT IN WISCONSIN

(By United Press)

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN, Enroute to New York City,—Wendell L. Willkie, headed east today to report to the Republican party on his efforts to win support of Democrats and independent voters in 18 western states which twice have cast their electoral votes for President Roosevelt.

He ended his western stumping tour at Madison, Wis., last night with a charge that Mr. Roosevelt's administration was attempting to re-elect itself for a third term with "blank check" appropriations by congress, and an assertion that the president observed the forms, but disregarded the substance, of Democratic and constitutional government.

It will be his first New York address of the campaign and his first to a purely Republican gathering since his nomination at the Philadelphia G.O.P. convention late in June. The speech will be broadcast by an eastern regional network of National Broadcasting company stations.

Willkie will stay in New York less than 24 hours before turning west again, beginning rear platform appearances at South Bend, Ind., early Monday and continuing east across Michigan to Detroit, where he speaks Monday night.. A tour of important Michigan industrial centers is scheduled Tuesday, and he delivers a nationally broadcast speech on foreign affairs at Cleveland Wednesday night. A Pittsburgh speech, probably on labor, is scheduled Thursday night as the Republican nominee steps up the tempo of his campaign.

Willkie in his Madison speech charged that the Roosevelt administration had concentrated power in the hands of the president but had left the forms of power with other branches of government. He said that was "exactly the route by which Octavius—who no doubt had the noblest of motives—ended the Roman empire" and was identically the route by which modern European democracies ended.

He criticized the president's attempt to increase the supreme court membership by statute instead of a constitutional amendment and charged that the president had asked and obtained from congress "blank check" appropriations which he was using "to bring pressure on that same congress to appropriate more money."

Binnie Barnes to Wed at Midnight, And Take Family

And after that, it's to be a family.

Right now, the outlook is for a family of four within a month.

For the British actress is to become "mother" to two nieces and a nephew "for the duration." And when the trio arrives, they'll greet a sister who has been in Hollywood four years.

Until last night, Binnie wasn't sure just when her wedding was coming off. A Sunday afternoon ceremony was spoiled when the Los Angeles baseball club won its way into the Pacific Coast league playoff. For Mike Frankovitch, the bridegroom-to-be, is the club's radio announcer. When Binnie heard she'd go to work in a new picture Monday, they decided on a midnight ceremony tonight at the home of film comic Joe E. Brown.

BID FAREWELL TO JIM FARLEY

Postmasters Greet New Boss At Final Session of Convention.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Postmasters of the United States put on their most cheerful smiles today as they bid a fond farewell to James A. Farley, until recently their boss.

Farley resigned his cabinet position of postmaster general to enter private business.

After making an appearance at convention headquarters this morning, Farley will attend the Ohio State University-Pittsburgh football game and be honored at a banquet concluding the 40th annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters tonight.

Yesterday the postmasters met their new "boss," Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, who came from Washington to tell "the boys" that he has "a lot to learn."

Walker admitted he "wasn't even sure how to pronounce philatelcly until I got this job." He assured the delegates, however, that he wanted to be helpful and expressed hope that he could "in small measure do as good a job as did my predecessor."

Besides playing host to their old boss today, the postmasters will select new officers, consider resolutions, and decide on a city for the 1941 convention.

NAMED DEPUTY

Harold Underwood, 361 Springmill street, brother of former Sheriff Underwood, had been named acting deputy sheriff today by Sheriff E. P. Long to replace Deputy Frank E. Robinson who is on a leave of absence.

ON PROBATION

Child Molester Released on Good Behavior.

Placed on three months probation by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson, John Snouffer, 44, South Boulevards, accused of molesting a child, was released today from the county jail where he had been held for the past week.

Arraigned several days ago, Snouffer admitted he had taken liberties with a 10-year-old neighbor girl at his home several months ago. Physicians said, however, that the child had not been assaulted.

Judge Anderson placed Snouffer on probation until Jan. 2, 1941, and warned him that if he fails to live up to the requirements of the probation he will be sent to the workhouse.

A charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor was filed against Snouffer after the grandparents of the child, with whom she lived, learned of the incident involving the girl.

MIDDLE-AGED MAN HELD IN ATKINS DEATH

Nabbed While Walking Near Home Where Funeral Planned Today.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — Police today arrested a middle-aged unidentified man as a suspect in the brutal mutilation murder last Tuesday night of Mrs. Ethel Craft Atkins, 35, the auburn-haired mother once related by marriage to the south's wealthy Duke family.

Although few details were announced immediately, it was learned that authorities swooped down upon the suspect as he assertedly was walking near the modest dwelling where funeral services for the victim will be held later today.

Detectives asserted the suspect had been a companion of Mrs. Atkins on at least one occasion and was the man they had been searching for the last several days.

Wearing only stockings and one white shoe, the woman was found clubbed and slashed to death in a vacant farmhouse near Horsham, Montgomery county, after having been missing from home since a week ago today.

Mrs. Atkins, the former wife of John C. Angier, of Baltimore, a second cousin by marriage of Doris Duke Cromwell, was the wife of James F. Atkins, one-time sailor and now an iron worker at the Baldwin Locomotive works in Eddystone, Pa.

She had left home last Friday night in a huff, neighbors told police, after having a quarrel with her second spouse, father of her twin, 3½-year-old sons.

Not That It Matters

Disquieting News Sounds Like That of '17; Stand On Service Pay Cleared

—By JANE WILLIAMS

ARE the American people being taken for a ride into another World war?

Strange, contradictory facts are beginning to come to light; facts which smell to the high heavens, and which must give all thinking persons a feeling of extreme uneasiness and suspicion.

The government announced this week that scrap iron—an essential in munitions—has been placed on the embargo list of exports to Japan, and at the same time announcement was made that we have loaned China another 26 millions, bringing the total money we have loaned that country to 80 million.

In other words, for the past three years, and right up until this week, we have been loaning China money to finance her war with Japan and at the same time providing Japan with the means of keeping that war going.

* * *

IN A copyrighted article this week, Guy Richards, correspondent for The News Syndicate, gives facts and figures and names of American industrialists supplying Germany and Italy with about ten million dollars worth of vital war supplies every month—and still doing it.

Five nations, he says, are lending themselves as agents to provide gold-lined shipping routes to Germany and Italy. These nations are Mexico, Cuba, Portugal, Spain and Russia. Our industrialists are selling them such blockade-barred war essentials as copper, oil, machinery for making war materials, and cotton which is an essential in the manufacture of explosives. Obviously this trade could not be carried on without the knowledge of the administration.

Richards points out in his article that representatives of General Franco and the German government have desks in the office of the du Pont company in New York City, and the du Ponts are among the world's largest munitions makers.

So then, if all this is true, we are doing exactly what we did in 1914-1917—playing both ends against the middle in a terrible world crisis. We are supplying both factors of the war with the materials to keep the war going. And in doing so, we are gambling with our very existence as a free people.

YESTERDAY Germany, Italy and Japan signed a mutual aid pact and at the same time demanded that America stop playing tag with the international situation. I think they were justified in that demand. Either we are in the war, or we aren't. Either we are for Great Britain and against the Axis or we aren't. We can't be both, any more than we can sell war supplies to both powers at the same time, and retain the good will of the world.

Great Britain isn't blind. She must know that we are double dealing again; outwardly pretending to be her friend, and underhandedly selling to her bitter enemies.

What will happen to us if Britain loses the war and wreaks her just wrath upon our double dealing by turning her navy over to Germany, Italy and Japan, with the possible alliance of Russia? We'd have as much chance of survival as a jello pudding in a hot oven.

MUCH as I appreciate the interest—critical or approving—of the readers of this column, once in awhile one of them gets me all balled up and confused. One of them sent me a tear-sheet this week from the Saturday Evening Post, which was an editorial against the conscription of national and individual wealth in time of war and national defense. A penciled note on it said: "this is an excellent answer to your ill-considered comment a few weeks ago on the conscription of money."

"Cripes," said I to myself and breaking out in cold sweat, "did I do that? I must have been mentally muscle-bound when I wrote it. Because I certainly don't believe in conscripting the national payroll, which makes up a great share of our national and individual wealth." So all in a dither, I went back over the columns of the past weeks, and then the past months, and nary a word to that effect could I find.

Could the reader possibly have mis-read my column of Aug. 24 in which I asked if men who served their country in the army were not worth as much as men who served in industrial plants?

I DO believe that if men must be conscripted to defend their country in open warfare, so should men in factories, who also serve, be under the same system of service. And I don't mean that workers should be forced to work for $30 a month.

* * *

I MEAN that there should be some fair adjustment between the men who face enemy guns for $30 a month and the men who remain at home in comparative safety and make—or did during the World war—fantastic salaries. In 1917-18 men crawled in the mud and died on barbed wire for a dollar a day, while men who worked in shipyards were paid $25 a day.

I believe that such grave injustice should never happen again, even if men in every industrial plant in the country must be drafted into a national defense army, even if the wages of soldiers must be raised to fantastic heights

Whether or not it is "ill considered," I STILL believe that men in the army are worth as much—and should have as much—as men in national defense factories—and that goes for the industrial bosses, too.

* * *

THESE Amazing Roosevelts! Is there no limit to their capabilities? Elliott, second son of the president, was made a captain this week without ever having been so much as a top sergeant, and some time ago James, the eldest son, was made a lieutenant colonel of Marines—and neither has had any military training.

With such smart kids, is it any wonder their Poppa got to be president of these United States?

gether with the Soviets in order to clear the way for Japanese expansion southward without worry as to Russia's actions.

Advices from Shanghai indicated that Japan hoped to conclude with Moscow a pact similar to the German-Russian friendship treaty. Germany was described as the "go-between" in the negotiations, but many neutral observers believed the Soviets would be extremely cautious because of fear that the triple alliance signed at Berlin might be a screen for future war against Russia.

Japanese Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye said that the new alliance would permit Japan to overcome obstacles to victory over China and establishment of Japanese hegemony in the Far East.

Konoye called in five former Japanese premiers to explain the new Alliance with Italy and Germany and apparently to gain their support.

It was considered significant, however, that former Premier Baron Hiranuma, a powerful political figure who failed to get along with the army leaders, did not attend the meeting.

Russian Demands Made on Japs

SHANGHAI — (INS) — Heavy Japanese concessions, including restoration of half of Manchuria and a carving up of the Manchukuo empire, were exacted by Soviet Russia as her price for acquiescence to the new Italo-German-Japanese military pact, according to unconfirmed reports in Shanghai today.

In persuading Japan to sign the agreement, these advices said, Germany gave assurances to Tokyo that the Reich could control Russia.

Moscow's alternative terms, these reports claimed, demand eradication of all fortifications along the Korean and Manchukuoan frontiers facing Siberia and outer Mongolia and formal renunciation by Japan of any designs, territorial or otherwise, upon outer Mongolia.

Travellers from Siberia reported seeing huge signs proclaiming: "We want the return of Harbin. We want Port Arthur."

Bulgaria Seen As Axis Partner

ROME —(AP)— Italian political circles suggested today that Bulgaria, friendliest of the Balkan countries to Soviet Russia, may join the new Axis pact of Germany, Italy and Japan.

Spain also was considered likely to be a recruit in the near future to the military accord against attacks by any other power not now at war in Europe or Asia.

If Bulgaria entered the new alignment, foreign observers said, it presumably would be for protection against Greece, from which Sofia wants an outlet to the Aegean sea through Thrace, and also from neighboring Turkey, friendly with Britain.

Soviet Papers Reveal Treaty

MOSCOW —(AP)— The Soviet government organ, Izvestia, and the Communist party organ, Pravda, broke their 24-hour silence today and announced the signing of the tri-party military pact yesterday among Germany, Japan and Italy.

The papers published an account of the signing as carried by DNB, official German news agency, along with a text of the treaty, German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop's speech in connection with the signing, and Adolf Hitler's reception of the signers.

Japanese Fear Break with U. S.

TOKYO—(INS)—While Japanese newspapers hailed the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo military pact as a "blow to United States imperialism in the Far East," Japanese officials today frankly admitted themselves gravely concerned over the future of Japanese-American relations.

A further strain in already acrimonious relations between Tokyo and Washington was predicted as a result of the new pact and President Roosevelt's announcement of an embargo on scrap iron and steel, which Tokyo regards as discriminatory against Japan.

Terming the actions of the United States as contrary to the dictates of common sense, Japanese officials expressed fears that an American embargo on oil shipments might force the Japanese into the Dutch East Indies to obtain essential military supplies.

In anticipation of the embargo on scrap iron and steel, it was stated, Japan has made arrangements to obtain ore in Manchukuo. But authorities denounced President Roosevelt's embargo announcement as a direct diplomatic attack upon Japan and said it had destroyed the last hopes of an economic understanding between the United States and Japan.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The John-Elaine business ought to make a good daily "box"—like the weather reports. . . .

Raymond Massey really has been acting in "Santa Fe Trail," in which he plays John Brown (of the body Browns). . . . He has been acting so much that Michael Curtiz, the director, has been up a tree. . . . The other day Mike looked unhappy. . . . There were questions about it . . . "Don't go near Mike today," the questioner was warned . . . "He's furious . . . He's just found out they're not going to let him hang Massey!"

Henry Fonda has the most unusual time-off-for-a-play contract clause in town . . . Hank's agreement permits him to leave pictures if he is asked to take part in the one play he told Zanuck he would drop everything to do—if it were made into a play . . . With the word that Thorton Wilder may dramatize his "Heaven's My Destination," the clause granted originally to satisfy an actor's whim takes on meaning because that's the one story the screen's "Chad Hanna" wants to stage-act . . . "But I don't think anybody has to worry over it," says Hank, who doubts that Wilder ever heard of him . . .

Plain, talented little Betty Brewer, who worked her way into pictures by singing outside a Hollywood cafe for pennies, signed her first autograph the other day after a preview of her "Rangers of Fortune" . . . "I felt like a fool," she said. "It's the first time anybody's asked for my autograph since I went off the relief rolls!"

Dana Andrews, the young Fremont of "Kit Carson," has three more years to go before paying off the deal that put him in pictures . . . A Collins, Miss., boy who went to Sam Houston college in Huntsville, Tex., Andrews had an eye on musical movies and came west, got a job as a filling station attendant in the valley, saved $20 a month to pay for singing lessons, but couldn't crack Hollywood. A station official heard about it, spotted him as a real picture bet, and staked him to a trial, with a weekly salary and a job whose principal requirement was that he get into pictures, and—if and when—to kick back a percentage . . . Well, Dana did get in two years ago, and he's been paying back, gratefully, every week since . . . He now has two contracts — with Sam Goldwyn and 20th Century-Fox . . . but hasn't yet had a chance to sing, which he can do exceptionally . . .

Movie titles are brightening up: "Reaching for the Sun" (which is the new one for the novel "F. O. B. Detroit") and "Valley of the Sun" and maybe "Sun Valley"—this if Sonja Henie will do it . . .

I suspect it's an old story, but I still like it even if 5-year-old Carolyn Lee didn't say it on the set of "Virginia" as alleged . . . Carolyn wanted to milk the nice cow they were using, and E. H. Griffith, the director, let her try. . . . She tried, but nothing happened . . . "It's empty," she pronounced . . .

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

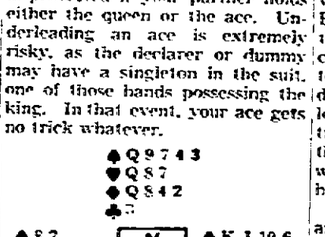
"The Authority on Authorities"

WORST LEAD OF ALL

Ordinarily, the worst kind of combination from which to lead against a suit contract is one topped by the ace. It is even worse than a lead from a king, which is protected if your partner holds either the queen or the ace. Underleading an ace is extremely risky, as the declarer or dummy may have a singleton in the suit, one of those hands possessing the king. In that event, your ace gets no trick whatever.



(Dealer: West Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
1 ♦	1 NT	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	3 NT	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	5 ♣

What terrifically rotten bidding! Here were two partners who rated each other's playing ability low, and so were straining to become declarer. Actually, the one whose playing proved the worst was neither North nor South, but West. He started by leading the diamond 6, which was won by the singleton K. After South took two top clubs, he led the heart 10, which the Q won, then returned the heart 8 to thet J, K and A.

It would hardly require a clairvoyant to read at this stage that East could ruff a heart, following the drop of his J, but West couldn't read that. He was too interested in making sure that his diamond A took a trick, and so led it—one round too late. South trumped it, being delighted to see that unexpectedly diamond Q was now set up for a discard of his losing spade.

South led his club J to East's Q, and that poor worthy was in a bad fix. If he led a spade he would set up North's Q. If a diamond, South could discard his losing spade on the diamond Q. So he led his club 8. South won, led his heart 2 to the 7, and then played the diamond Q for a spade discard, thus making a contract which should have been set two tricks at least.

* * *

Your Week-End Lesson.

What is the soundest way to play each of the following spade suits, granting plenty of entries into both declarer's and dummy's holdings, in an effort to take all of the tricks in the suit?

2. ♠ A K 10 6	♠ Q 5 4 2
3. ♠ A K 6 5	♠ Q 10 5 4

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—so as to get in practice to avoid hitting a school bus Monday.

According to a sociologist "most people can't stand prosperity"—so it may be fortunate that few people have to.

With the American Legion convention in its midst this week, Boston probably hasn't had so much excitement since the tea party.

Japan Joins Axis Powers

ALTHOUGH it may not have come as a surprise, the serious implications of the newly formed alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan should quickly become clear to every American.

It has been evident for a long time that Japan's aggressive policies in the Far East were quite similar to those of the Axis powers in Europe, and entirely out of accord with those of Great Britain and the United States.

For the past several years the United States has been in the anomalous position of sympathizing with China and at the same time supplying scrap iron and steel to Japan for use in carrying on its war. Belated steps were taken this week to stop exportation of such war materials to Japan, effective October 16.

Events of the past few days, with hostilities spreading to Gibraltar, Dakar in West Africa, and French Indo-China, had brought further complications in an acute situation, even before announcement of Japan's alliance with the Axis powers.

This announcement, it will be noted, was coupled with a statement that the action was intended basically "to inform the United States she is now faced with a choice between open participation in the war and non-belligerency."

The position of the United States, in its condemnation of Nazi and Fascist aggression in Europe and Japanese attacks upon China, as well as in its obvious support of Great Britain by all means "short of war" could not have escaped notice by the three nations now joined in a military, economic and political pact, each pledged to support the others "if an outside power opposes any one of the three."

Whether it will be possible, under such circumstances, for the United States to "keep out of war" is problematical. It is at least evident that there has never been a time which demanded more clear-thinking statesmanship by responsible government officials, and complete freedom from such inflammatory utterances as have heretofore been made by President Roosevelt and others in high positions.

If war comes again to the United States all of the people of this country are entitled to know that it was forced upon us as the only means of defending and preserving THIS nation and its constitutional liberties—not brought upon us by idealistic ideas of visionary theorists that the United States is obligated to police the entire world.

The immediate need—whatever the future may hold—is to build up defensive armament and manpower in this country as rapidly as possible . . . with full understanding that this is intended for DEFENSIVE, not aggressive warfare.

Meanwhile congress should, by all means, stay in session. What is badly needed in Washington just now is a display of actual statesmanship instead of the partisan politics of an administration seeking to perpetuate itself.

Argentina Bans Alien Flyers

ONE of the danger points in some South American countries has been the ownership of local air lines by Italian or German companies and the employment of alien flyers. In one country, it is said, pilots came from Germany, flew the lines a year or two, then returned to the homeland and were replaced by new men. It meant that a large number of German aviators were thoroughly familiar with the topography and air routes of that country.

The Argentine government, fully aware of a similar situation, is taking steps now to put all civilian aviation under domestic control, with native pilots flying planes made in Argentina. The pilots will be reserve officers for a future air corps. The government plans to extend its present air lines to all important points in the country and to expand greatly the total air service. Naturalized citizens must have lived in Argentina at least ten years in order to be eligible for jobs with the air system.

Whether or not this will affect commercial air lines operated from this country by American pilots remains to be seen. Probably a sensible arrangement can be worked out between the two governments. Most citizens here would feel relieved to have German and Italian control eliminated even if new problems are created in the process.

About Shaking Hands

THERE'S really more to Elsie Robinson's "Listen World" article today than a casual reading may disclose. At first glance it appears to be nothing more than a hotel manager's ideas about right and wrong ways to shake hands.

Older readers who have given some thought to the subject already know the extent to which the character of a person is revealed by a hand shake but many younger persons may not realize the extent to which they are judged by the way in which they shake hands, either with friends, acquaintances or persons to whom they are introduced.

Shaking hands has become so widely accepted in this country as a gesture of friendship that it merits more attention than is sometimes given by young people—and even older persons who may have wondered at the unfavorable impression they make on new acquaintances.

A cordial hand shake that evidences natural friendliness is one of the essentials of pleasing personality. Stilted, "fishy," finger-crushing or over-effusive (campaigning) handshakes merit study as revealing traits of character.

If you read Elsie Robinson's article carefully you'll find that it contains more than a hint to ambitious hotel clerks.

New Gold Field In India

A RICH new find of gold has been reported from Mysore state, near Honnali in the Shimoga district in India, about 200 miles from the city of Bangalore. The area of the new field is said to be about 25 square miles. Trial washings have disclosed one gram of sponge gold in every ton of sand.

Now the world will have more of the precious and beautiful metal. And when it gets it, what will it do with it?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

SAN JUAN, P. R.—Today we drove out through roads that were lined with coffee and Australian pine trees, and past pineapple and sugarcane plantations, to Puerto Rico's most modern rum distillery, the Carioca distillery, which has become one of the show places of the island.

If you have ever visited Ben Marden's Riviera in New York you will get some idea of how this place looks. It isn't at all real, in the sense that you expect to find a factory or a distillery. It is patterned along color and architectural designs that Walt Disney might have thought up.

On all sides is lush tropical foliage. Almond trees, and the flaming flamboyans throw patches of red against the darker background of the canebreaks. You see towering coconut trees, fronds waving in the light summer trades, which are never still, and you see boys shinneying up those trees with long, wicked machete knives (made in Connecticut) and chopping off the green coconuts.

* * *

DOWN here they cut them while they are green, for then they hold a quart of milk. There is a trick of dexterously flourishing the knife and trimming away one end of the coconut, so that you can drink the milk in comfort. It is quite a trick. I tried, but couldn't get anywhere with it.

After this refreshing drink we advanced upon the distillery. The air was heavy with the smell of molasses. It is pumped into the ground in storage tanks, much as oil is stored under ground.

The Carioca distillery has several of these bright, new buildings, all of which look like night clubs. You could pass your hand over any part of it, and wear white gloves, without soiling the gloves. You see giant copper vats holding thousands of gallons of fermenting rum. You go into another building and a chemist is carefully analyzing the new rum and the old, and the ingredients he puts into the rum, in hundreds of test tubes. You go into still another building and there you will find the "assembly" line.

This is the bottling works. An endless stream of empties is fed mechanically into a central point, where they are filled by machinery. As the bottles come out one man places a stopper in the mouth. Another bangs the cork with a hammer, ramming it home. Women are next in line, and these are slapping labels on the bottles as they move past. Today they are bottling white rum, because the label says "blanca."

* * *

OUTSIDE, laborers are leveling off a new drive which has been named Frances K Avenue. Landscape artists are fashioning new designs in the always luxurious tropic shrubbery. Off to one side hundreds of barrels are stacked, ready and waiting. They are pouring mortar for a new storage house. To the right, you can gaze out over the harbor, and to a tiny island in the mouth of the harbor, where once the lepers were kept. Beyond that is the sea and the old route which the pirates used to use as they beat up from Peru against the summer trades. From this point you can see also the mountains and the blue sky and the banana trees and the breadfruit trees and the mango trees and, indeed, all the beauty and warmth and color that help to make Puerto Rico what it is.

Profits and the General Welfare

By GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

ANY attacks on profits is popular. This is due to the fact that profits are always associated with the rich in the minds of the uninformed.

Hence demagogues take advantage of every opportunity to capitalize the ignorance of the crowd to make tirades against profits.

The fact that profits are the returns for unusual efficiency in the production of wealth, and hence represent a contribution to general welfare as well as a gain to those who earn and receive profits, is kept hidden from the crowd.

In the competitive field of business today practically all business is conducted under corporate form. The corporation represents the three factors of production brought together in co-operation for the purpose of producing wealth. These three factors are land, or natural agents, capital, or the material equipment necessary to production, and labor, or the man factor in carrying on the productive process.

The corporation is organized and directed by those who supply the capital. The natural agents, as land, water power, mines, etc., are bought or rented on the open market at prices fixed by the market.

Likewise the services of all who work in any way for the corporation, under industrial freedom, are bought on the open market at the prices fixed by the market.

Those who supply the natural agents and those who contribute their services to the corporation are paid in full for the contributions they make whether the corporation makes any profits at all or loses money. The workers are paid in full the market value of their services whether the corporation gains or loses.

Those who supply the capital create the opportunities for employment, take all the risks of the business, and are the last claimants on the earnings of the business.

* * *

AFTER all workers are paid in full and after all other claimants are paid in full, if anything is left it goes to those who supply the capital, create the opportunities for employment and take all the risks of the business. The theory of demagogues and ignorant, stupid reformers that the corporation, under American constitutional freedom, gives some special advantage to those who supply the capital is pure fiction created by stupid minds.

In the regular order of business, under normal business conditions, many corporations lose money, many make small gains, many make average gains, some make above average gains, and a comparatively small number make large gains.

As a rule the large gains made in competitive business are due to unusual ability and efficiency in directing the business. Profits, here, are not taken from labor nor from consumers, but represent new and additional wealth created by men of unusual ability and efficiency.

Unusual profits represent unusual efficiency and unusual contributions to general welfare that is the natural and inevitable product of higher efficiency in business. It would be just as sane to designate the large incomes of great surgeons, great physicians and great preachers as representative of excess profits as it is to call the incomes due to unusual efficiency in business "excess profits."

For the government to confiscate the incomes that are the result of unusual efficiency in any field is for the government to penalize progress, discourage efficiency and make itself an enemy of general welfare.

It is important to draw a distinction here between the corporations that are organized to supply useful commodities or useful service to society and the corporations that are organized for speculative purposes. The system of taxation applied to speculative corporations should be different from that applied to service corporations.

* * *

THE following is a striking example of the "speculative corporation." The New York Times of September 14, 1922 contained an advertisement of the "United European Investors Company."

Franklin D. Roosevelt was president of that company, and in the advertisement he urged the public to put money into his company for the purpose of speculating in German marks.

Hundreds of people, it is said, put their money into Mr. Roosevelt's "get-rich-quick" scheme. They lost every dollar they invested, for the company never earned a cent.

Have You Learned To Shake Hands?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE SET great store on technique, we Machine Agers. Efficiency is a cult with us. We're crammed with smart tips on how to do things in a Big Way, how to put ourselves across and achieve Success in Six Easy Lessons.

Yet with all our streamlined sophistication, there's still something missing, some secret that would help us "get near to people," out of our own loneliness and frustration, into the heart of life. Other people can do it, why can't we? What's wrong with our system?

A New Orleans hotel man, a past master of hotel hospitality, told me a little story once that bears on this. We'd been talking about power and popularity and how easily they seem to come to some—yet others who work far harder can't turn the trick.

"It makes me think of a chap who worked for me once," he said. "He'd been with me for years in a clerical position—one of those careful, hard-working fellows with plenty of ambition but no particular personality. A wizard with figures, though.

"Well, it happened that I needed an assistant manager and Jim was keen on getting the position. I tried to put him off but he kept at me, so at last I said: 'All right, I'll give you the place, Jim, but I warn you—you won't make good at it.'

"He stared at me, amazed. He knew I'd been impressed by his past record—then why should I think he'd fail in this?

"'I'll tell you why, Jim,' I said. 'You'll fail because you've never learned to shake hands.'

"'B-but what's there to shaking hands?' he said. 'Anyone can do that!'

"'You're wrong there—anyone can't. Not the way I mean. Shaking hands isn't a social gesture. It's one of the most complicated and important things in any job where you have to meet people—and that means practically all jobs.

"Did you ever stop to realize, Jim, that behind every business set up—behind all the red tape and office furniture and big machines—there's a person. A person with a heart and feelings. And unless you can reach that person and get into that heart, you're not going to get very far in any deal.

"'You've made good with figures, Jim, because all you needed was hard work and a smart head. But that isn't enough when you're contacting people. You've got to get down into your own heart if you want them to let you into theirs. You've got to give something out of your own self—share something of yourself—or it's no dice. And that's what your handshake should mean—a sort of bridge betwen a couple of lives.

"'That's what I meant when I said you hadn't learned to shake hands. You're a great worker, Jim. You know all the answers that come in books. But like so many young people these days, you're putting all your bets on rules and systems and it isn't good enough. Why, you can get further with one hand shake—if you've put the right stuff into it—than with all the technique and success rules that ever were written.'"

"Well, how did it turn out?" I said. "Did you give him the job—and did he make good? I suppose he thought your advice was just a lot of sentimental twaddle."

The hotel man smiled. "I suppose so. I could see he was determined to make me eat my words, so I let him go ahead. And he certainly put all he had into it. But he threw it up after a month, said he didn't think people were worth all the effort you had to make to please them. Last I heard, he's still at his bookkeeping."

And I thought of the dreary millions who stay stuck in some hopeless niche—lonely and resentful—because they, too, "never learned to shake hands," never dared to risk the great adventure of giving and sharing themselves.

Forty-Four Billions.

On Tuesday the national debt passed the $44,000,000,000 mark. That is an increase of $21,500,000,000 since June, 1933, when the New Deal was getting under way.

In his campaign speeches of 1932 President Roosevelt warned the nation against the inevitable fate of the spendthrift who habitually spends more than he takes in. Yet for seven years the Roosevelt administration exceeded its income by an average of $3,000,000,000 a year.

That is what the New Deal has cost the nation. It is the present condition of our finances before we commence to spend one penny of the billions of dollars which now must be laid out to pay for the vast program of national defense.

There can be little wonder that, in the face of this record, the Democratic platform observed a studied silence on the matter of finance and that the party's candidate, Mr. Roosevelt, while enlarging upon the accomplishments of the New Deal, carefully refrains from any mention of what they cost.—Baltimore Sun.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Willkie's Vote-Getting Safari; U. S. Population Growth Slower

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WENDELL, you should pull your punches." That's the advice Wendell Willkie says friends have been giving him.

In answer he shouted to a Sacramento crowd: "I don't know how to fight that way. If this administration thinks it can get away with the record of the road to bankruptcy, with the road of unemployment, with the centralization of power in Washington . . . and not have me tell the American people about it, it is mistaken."

He told another crowd on his western vote-getting safari he couldn't think of a single reason for the re-election of FDR. But he offered lots of reasons why he should replace Roosevelt.

On labor. At Seattle, a center of unionism, he backed all the social gains labor has made but asserted an administration must go further than minimum guarantees, it must "make jobs and jobs and jobs."

On utilities. Willkie, who first hit the headlines by fighting aspects of the TVA, promised Oregonians that their titantic Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams would be completed and developed if he was elected. He narrowed the power issue down to whether power should be distributed through municipal or private systems. Customers could decide, he said.

On foreign affairs. "I charge that this administration has contributed to the downfall of European democracy." He urged more aid to Britain and China.

On business. "Under the New Deal the employer who puts up money to make a profit has been in the doghouse."

Willkie's running mate, Senator McNary, backed him up in Illinois by charging that the New Deal found "agriculture ill of a functional disorder" and made the disorder "chronic." He denied that there were "major differences" between his and Willkie's views.

Democratic Retorts.

Meanwhile the Democrats most adept deflaters were jabbing at Willkie.

Dapper Senator Byrnes accused Willkie of speaking "contemptuously" of the president as "this fellow," of using profanity in a campaign speech by consigning Chicago "to the lower regions," and of making "irresponsible statements."

Secretary Ickes said Willkie was masquerading as a friend of government power projects to cover his record as their foe. Vice Presidential nominee Wallace attacked those "financial monstrosities known as holding companies."

Earlier the president in a scholarly address at the University of Pennsylvania offered a vigorous defense of a democracy advised by all its people as against rule by "a few elite."

FDR Chides Opponents.

But perhaps he had the campaign in mind when he said "No dictator in history has ever dared to run the gauntlet of a free election." He charged that even today there are demands that our government be run by "those few, who because of business ability or economic omniscience, are supposed to be just a touch above the average of our citizens."

On Tuesday Mr. Roosevelt said he was "very, very happy" to welcome the support of the National Committee of Independent voters. It was set up to compete with the Republican "Democrats For Willkie" groups in snaring wobbly voters. Senator Norris and Mayor LaGuardia of New York are notable backers.

At Home

Slower Growth.

Sociologists have predicted that eventually the population of the U. S. will stop increasing. They say the peak may be reached by 1970 and that latest census figures—which show only a 7% gain—tend to confirm this view. It is the smallest gain in history.

Census Director Austin blames the drop on: (1) declining birth rate. (2) curbs on immigration. The 1940 total is 131,409,881.

Percentages for individual states show that Florida gained the most (27.9% while South Dakota lost the most (7.5%).

These population changes probably will give the south and far west eight additional seats in the house of representatives at the expense of the midwest and east. It's expected that California will gain two seats. Arizona, Florida, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon and Tennessee one each. Losers probably will be Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania.

Home Before Christmas?

President Roosevelt spent a turbulent week getting the vast machinery in shape for selective service registration.

He appointed six technical experts to an advisory committee to help coordinate plans for conscription; approved creation of the office of under-secretary of war; ordered into effect two huge volumes of rules and regulations for the operation of the draft.

Senators doubted that they would be able to get home this week-end after all. Some thought congress should not adjourn till Christmas. The house-senate conference committee on the excess profits bill disagreed for days on many points.

Old Ships for Sale.

Amid rumors that the British were trying to buy more of our used ships, the Maritime commission offered 25 old cargo vessels for sale. They have been gathering barnacles in Virginia's James river and at New Orleans. Bids will be opened Oct. 8.

The senate interstate commerce committee undertook a proposal of pugnacious Senator Wheeler to air the control exerted by German and other foreign corporations over U. S. defense industries.

Abroad

A Most Dastardly Act.'

After holding back news for five days and hinting to newsmen that a momentous story was to break, the British government announced early this week the sinking in mid-Atlantic of a refugee ship carrying 96 children to Canada. Of the 406 persons aboard, three-quarters perished.

Only 19 of the youngsters were saved. Survivors said the ship was torpedoed without warning, that the children sang "Roll Out the Barrel" as the ship sank in the stormy darkness 20 minutes later.

An official called it "another example of the barbarous methods associated with Nazi Germany." U. S. Secretary Hull termed it "a most dastardly act."

German officials snorted that the story of the sinking was a "tear jerker" intended to get the U. S. into the war on Britain's side.

* * *

Hollander's Grudge.

Netherlanders watch every night for a grim Dutch flyer named Koene Parmentier who is conducting grudge raids on German military objectives in Holland from a British base. His family was killed when the Nazi Luftwaffe wiped out the entire central section of Rotterdam. After each raid he drops a note advising his countrymen where he'll strike next. He flies alone.

* * *

Uruguay's Germans.

Uruguay, smallest republic in South America, is as close to state socialism (Fascism) as any. Just in time, last June, she heard of an alleged plot by Germans in Uruguay to seize control in the name of A. Hitler. She let out a frantic call for help, and the U. S. cruiser Quincy rushed to Montevideo on a "good will visit." The plot was squashed.

Still jittery, Uruguayan officials have been taking a harder look at German residents. This week several alleged Nazi leaders were arrested.

* * *

Too Much Wheat.

Canada's biggest domestic woe is a whopper wheat crop of 561,000,000 bushels. Carry-over from last year brings the total on hand to 862,000,000 bushels.

Canada herself consumes no more than 130,0000,000 bushels. What with foreign markets closed due to the war, experts don't hope to export more than 200,000,000. This will leave unsold 532,000,000.

Some experts are seriously proposing that Canadians revolutionize their eating habits by doubling their consumption of wheat.

People

Writers Choose Sides.

Sixteen American writers recently hopped on Wendell Willkie's wagon. This week 25 others replied by romping off to a Hyde Park picnic with FDR. Here are the more prominent partisans:

For Willkie. Clarence Budington Kelland, Booth Tarkington, Red Beach, Faith Baldwin, Kenneth Roberts, James Truslow Adams, Irvin S. Cobb, Kathleen Norris, Nina Wilcox Putnam.

For Roosevelt: Marc Connelly Edna Ferber, Robert Sherwood, Henrik Willem Van Loon, Hervey Allen, Elmer Rice, James Thurber, William Saroyan, John Gunther.

Legionnaires In Boston.

In more somber mood than usual American Legionnaires met in Boston this week. They heard from head G-man J. Edgar Hoover a plea to assist the FBI in curbing war hysteria and guarding against "scheming peddlers of foreign isms." And they backed "all practical aid" to Britain.

In Short

Killed: Two persons in an explosion at the U. S. army's Picatinny arsenal in New Jersey.

Returned: Vice president Garner, to Washington after secluding himself at his Texas ranch since the Democratic convention.

Crashed: Into a southeast Georgia swamp, an army plane bearing Brig. Gen. Honeycutt, commandant of Fort Bragg, and two companions. All were killed.

Resigned: L. W. (Chip) Roberts, jr., as secretary of the Democratic national committee. Rep. Vinson pointed out in August that Roberts' company received naval contracts carrying $931,560 in fees.

HOROSCOPE

Saturday, Sept. 28.

An extremely lively and eventful day is read from the predominant astral influences. It is probable that sudden visitations may be precipitated of breath-taking effect and unpredictable denouement. The devastating and disruptive action may involve removal, travel, change of plans and objectives, but not with ominous finality if tact, diplomacy and clever intrigue be resorted to.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of sudden surprising and unpredictable events, descending with whirlwind force and causing a radical change of plans, purpose, surroundings and associates.

A child born on this day may be versatile clever constructive with much shrewdness and ingenuity. It may be thoroughly practical as well as being impressionable and artistic.

INFORMALITY marked the marriage this morning of Miss Dorothy Louise Kass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kass, 139 West Third street, to Duane Austin Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, Ashland. The 9:45 o'clock ceremony was read at the parsonage of St. Peter's Catholic church with Rev. Fr. John Flynn officiating.

Miss Kass was attired in a brown two-piece costume suit trimmed in marten with brown and olive green accessories. She wore a corsage of Talisman roses and gardenias, and a gold cross, the gift of the bridegroom.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Isabel Kass, who wore a promenade green dress with angora trim and brown accessories with a gardenia corsage. Herman Kass, brother of the bride, was best man.

The bride's mother was attired in a wine and navy blue costume with a gardenia corsage. Mrs. Brown wore wine and soldier blue and a gardenia corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home for members of the immediate families. Pink and white appointments and a tiered wedding cake decorated the bride's table. Later today Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for an eastern motor trip.

They will be at home after Oct. 7 at 297½ West Dickson avenue.

The former Miss Kass was graduated from the St. Peter's high school, and has been employed in the printing department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Mr. Brown, a graduate of Ashland high school, is a member of Beta Phi Sigma fraternity, and is associated with his father in the electrical business.

Three Hostesses Honor Miss White At Shower

Mrs. Carl Oswalt, Swanger avenue, assisted by Mrs. Jean Hurly and Mrs. William Nash, entertained last night with a personal shower in honor of Miss Helen White. Autumn leaves and lighted white tapers decorated the table at which refreshments were served.

The evening was spent in making a bride's book. Alarm clocks ringing throughout the house directed the honoree to her gifts. Miss White will become the bride of Rev. Sylvester Porter at the Park Avenue Baptist church at 2 p. m. Oct. 2 with Rev. H. E. Tropf, pastor of the Grace Gospel church, officiating.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Katherine, Lillian and I found we had little to do in my room when we went into it. Although Katie had not been permitted inside it since Edith Fairfax had found sanctuary there, Miss Whitlock had kept everything in meticulous order.

"There's nothing to do here except remove your things and make up the bed with fresh linen," Katherine said, and as I started for the closet, Lillian pursed her lips, and, advancing to a table, drew her finger across its polished surface, and held it up, srutinizing it with the critical air of the traditional New England housewife.

"Not even a smidgin," she said dolorously, and Katherine grinned at her.

"Quit trying to pretend you're a mother-in-law looking for dust on the furniture of your son's bride," she said, "and get busy on this bed. I'll run and get the linen while you strip it. I'll be back to help you turn the mattress. Which sheets and pillow slips do you want, Madge? I suppose the best ones, if the great Philip Veritzen is to park himself here."

"I fancy the best ones are indicated." I said laughing, "and if you don't mind bringing a fresh blanket and spread I'll be grateful. Get the duplicate of this spread here. This wouldn't need to be changed if it weren't a little wrinkled."

"If you want to put on seven feather mattresses, Madge," Lillian suggested, her face set in solemn lines, "I'll guarantee that not a single teeny weeny rose leaf shall blow in anywhere."

Katherine turned from the door and shook a small fist at her.

"If you don't have that bed ready for me by the time I get back!" she said menacingly, and left the rest of the threat unspoken as she sped down the hall.

Lillian fell to work on the bed, while I took out my clothing from the closet and draped it over chairs. When she had finished stripping and had put the bed linen down the laundry chute in the bathroom, and had folded the blanket and spread and put them on a chair, she put her arms akimbo and faced Katherine, coming in with laden arms.

"Show me a better job than that one!" she declaimed.

"It's perfect," Katherine acknowledged with a slow grin.

"What next?" Lillian countered. "Shall I help you make the bed?"

"Heaven forbid!" Katherine shot back. "I want to make a hospital bed of this. Then if the great Mr. Veritzen suffers any casualties, we shall be ready for him."

"If his agitation over the telephone is any indication of his condition," I said, "he's likely to have a stroke after he talks with father."

Both women shot a quick intent look at me.

"What did your father say?" Lillian queried, "or isn't it on the free list to tell us?"

"I'm sure he didn't mean it was barred from your ears," I returned. "He said Mr. Veritzen's coming was no surprise to him, that he had expected it, and then after a pause, he added, "It all fits in.' "

Lillian clapped her hands together significantly.

All Set.

"I'll broadcast to the stars that he may have a stroke when your father gets through with him," she said.

"Then," Katherine said a bit tartly, "swift action here is indicated. Then at least there'll be a place to park him if he topples over."

Her voice was unsympathetic, but Lillian and I knew that no matter how strong her antagonism to Philip Veritzen because of what she thought was his cruel treatment of Mary, she would give him the tenderest and most skillful care if he should need her services.

"I think,"—Lillian addressed me dolorously—"the lady means we should both get——out of here, taking your clothing with us. But that cannot be until I get my few duds into one closet in my room, giving Madge the other. If you'll come along and help me Madge, we'll both be back for your things in the traditional jiffy."

"Make it Katie's 'vag of leetle sheep's tail,' " Katherine responded, attacking her bed-making with vigor.

"Okay, Meesis Simon Legree," Lillian retorted, and we hurried over to Lillian's room.

CHAPTER XXX

In the modest apartment hotel, she went to the desk and asked for her mail, her spirits rising when she saw that there was a letter for her and a card, the letter from Amy Durfee and the card from Carol and Norman, the latter another of the series of cards she had received from Hawaii. Stepping into the elevator, she came face to face with three girls who would, she suspected, begin to talk about her as soon as she got off. "That was Edwina Burke," they would probably say. "She has a job and lives here. Spent all her money. It's her own fault. . . . ."

The little apartment she entered was the typical apartment of a working girl who lives alone and who cooks and does small domestic chores for herself. The studio couch was both sofa and bed, and there was one comfortable chair, a table, a lamp, a chest of drawers and a small radio. On the wall were two flower prints and a hanging bookshelf. Furniture from the house in Newton, which she had not given with her gift to the museum or sold to Mr. Lane, had been stored in the attic of the Newton house with Mrs. Lane's permission after a long and thoroughly pleasant telephone conversation. There was nothing in this room or in the kitchenette to remind her of the splendor of the house in Newton.

Pulling off her hat, she sank wearily in the chair and read the card. "Much love from Carol and Norman," and, smilingly wistfully, put it aside as one puts aside something to be treasured and looked at again. Then she tore open Amy's letter: Amy had written chiefly not of herself but of Edwina. In part, the letter read:

I never told you this before, but before your father died he told me that you would be poor again. He seemed to know exactly what would happen to you. He said, "Amy, Edwina won't find herself until she's poor but she has good stuff in her and I'm not afraid to leave her alone. We Burkes go soft with money. Without it we can fight and we're not happy unless we're fighting. I enjoyed my life more when I was fighting for my existence than I've ever enjoyed it since. I know my girl. She'll get kicked about but she'll learn and she'll love that Harding boy until she dies. There'll be a hundred men in between but she'll love him. That's another Burke trait, falling in love once in your life."

I don't know how right he was, my dear, but he had an uncanny way of being right about most things, of seeing ahead of his time and of understanding people—even his own child.

I had dinner with Robert Tallant last night and we talked about you and Carol and Norman and of course Alan, too. My evenings with him are rich in good conversation and if I were twenty, no, ten years younger, I'm afraid your unromantic Amy would be quite in love. But we shall remain, I am sure, only partners in bridge and golf, and enduring friends.

You young people—how I love you and envy you, and how you annoy me. How dishonest you are with yourselves and how you deceive yourselves with your silly romanticism that keeps you away from the truth and the thing your heart really desires. Always looking over a fence, when in you and in you alone is the material for a fine life. And when you make a mistake, you look up very wide-eyed and say, "Oh, I didn't know!" and cry your little hearts out when the answer has been in you all the while.

I've always said, Edwina, that you were honest with every one except yourself. Strip yourself of all shams and pretenses and look into yourself because each individual is a rare treasure chest which too few of us ever discover . . .

Edwina's hands dropped to her lap, still holding Amy Durfee's letter. How like Amy to write such a letter — dear, old, honest, straight-thinking Amy! "I won't be sorry for myself!" Edwina told herself. "I won't! I'll get my dinner and go for a walk, and tomorrow I'll work harder at the office and not think so much."

Quickly she arose and went to the kitchenette, slipped a white organdy apron over her head and opened the refrigerator. She was busy fifteen minutes before the telephone rang.

Dick? Cornelia? They'd been grand to her though recently she had rejected their invitations. . . .

Drying her hands, she picked up the telephone.

"Edwina? Edwina Burke?"

"Yes. . . ."

"Not the Edwina Burke! It can't be! But it will be very swell if it is. . . ."

"It is. . . ."

She heard a gay, boyish laugh. "Darling, this is Jock Aldridge and I only just learned—ran into Sut Patton today: we're both just back in town—that you were here. I've tried several times to get you. . . ."

* * *

She had a vision of a tall boy, lean and strong from polo and tennis and golf, and a sunburned face with bright blue eyes and a weak mouth that smiled a charming, twisted smile. Just back in town from Bar Harbor probably. And Sue, just back from the Maine coast, had no doubt received the check Edwina sent her. A check for $250 dollars which Sue would cash and then stuff absentmindedly into her smart purse to spend for luncheons and manicures and taxis. . . .

"I'm not in during the day, Jock. I work . . ."

"So Sue said." He laughed again. "You girls do the most fantastic things these days. Work! But I want to see you, Edwina. I've missed you like the devil all summer. You dropped out of sight. Lots of people asked about you. We supposed you were down in that Godforsaken town you're from. Anyway, why not tonight to tell me about it?"

"I told you. I work. I can't stay up all night at one of your parties, Jock." They would have cocktails and dinner and dance at one popular place after another, and the people she had known would greet her and welcome her back—because she had paid them what she owed them. Sue, Barbara, Sonny, Eric, the gang . . . "Darling, where have you been?" they would ask. "What a perfectly elegant tan! The Stuarts are back in town and you simply must . . . "Lights and music and voices. It would not be lonely back on the merry-go-round and she had money, money in the bank. Why not? Why not go out in a blaze of glory?

"I won't keep you out all night," he said. "Of course I would if I could. I'll call for you at 7. . . ."

Edwina was about to say "All right. I'll be ready at 7," when she found that she had been absently fingering Amy's letter. A letter . . . a letter from a stiff, starched nurse who had never had time to be lonely. . . . Just a letter, but it made her say, "Sorry, Jock. I have to have a clear head in the morning. I'm not working for fun but because I have to. Anyway, it was nice of you to think of me."

"Lost your grip?"

"No. Not at all. I've lost my taste for people like you. Goodbye."

Her hand was shaking as she thought: I didn't do it, Amy. I couldn't. I'm lonely but I'm clean and I don't want to get dirty again. And I don't owe anybody. Permit me to be a little pleased with myself for once, and thank you again. . . .

* * *

She ate a hot dinner alone and read the newspaper as she ate. When the few dishes were washed and put away, she washed stockings and a collar and cuff set and hummed along with the radio. She wasn't beaten. She wasn't afraid. She was young and strong and there must be something for her in the unknown, unlived years ahead.

It was only 8 o'clock then. If she stayed in, she would be conscious of silence and loneliness again, so she put on a boyish black felt hat and the tailored little black coat and went out—and walked with her face set against the brisk October wind that swept around the corners of tall buildings and whipped tears in her eyes.

THEATERS

Show Within a Show.

A show within a show, reminiscent of the hilarious minstrel show in "Babes in Arms" is staged in "Strike Up the Band," showing at the Ohio. Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland are seen in a burlesque old-time skit "Nell of New Rochelle" in this film. Old-fashioned melodrama is brought to play as the youngsters put on their show to raise money so that Mickey's swing band can enter a national contest.

* * *

Midwestern Outlaws.

The new frontier action epic "When the Daltons Rode" with Randolph Scott and Kay Francis in the leading roles is playing at the Madison. The Dalton boys, most famous of all the midwestern outlaws, are recreated on the screen by Brian Donlevy, Broderick Crawford and Frank Albertson. Other important roles are taken by Stuart Erwin, Andy Devine and George Bancroft. Co-feature is "Slightly Tempted" with Hugh Herbert in the lead.

* * *

Action in Double Bill.

"Sandy Is a Lady" is the feature at the Park beginning Sunday. Baby Sandy and the little tornadoes Butch and Buddy of "The Underpup" fame are headliners in the cast. However a quintet of comedians appear in support of the two-year-old star. They are Mischa Auer, Eugene Pallette, Billy Gilbert Edgar Kennedy and Fitz Feld. "On the Spot," starring Frankie Darro is the second film. It is an exciting story of a soda jerker who becomes involved in several murder mysteries.

* * *

Edward G. Robinson.

Edward G. Robinson takes over in the hilarious story of "Brother Orchid," which comes Sunday to the Ritz. Ann Sothern, Humphrey Bogart, Ralph Bellamy and Allen Jenkins are co-starred with this "Little Caesar," who turns to kidding the denizens of gangland in this comedy. What happens when a big-shot racketeer goes in for culture is told in this film. Second attraction Sunday will be "One Million Years B. C."

* * *

Mansfield Trips Elyria, 7-6, In Gruelling Grid Battle

Tygers Score In Second to Mark Up Win

Brandt Adds Winning Point From Placement; Templeton Makes Touchdown.

VETERAN high school football teams hold no fear for the Mansfield high Tygers.

For the third straight week the inexperienced Tyger combine has faced veteran elevens and on each occasion emerged with the decision.

Coach Paul Snyder's athletes tackled a favored Elyria high outfit before some 3,500 fans under the arcs at Stadium field and emerged with a thrilling 7 to 6 victory in a bruising battle.

* * *

Mansfield spotted the touted Elyria a 6 to 0 lead in the first period and then roared back to mark up the winning points in the second chapter.

* * *

But from there on Mansfield had a tough fight keeping the Elyria aggregation from knocking at the touchdown door again. Several Mansfield fumbles caused the Tyger club considerable worry.

The Tygers were outplayed in picking up yardage last night and registering first downs, but when it came to holding their own the Mansfielders were on top.

Elroy "Lightning" Jones, the Tyger speed merchant, starred in another role last night. Elyria, whenever it marched inside the Mansfield 35, unleashed its aerial attack. But the invaders forgot to consider Jones.

The youthful halfback was all over the field, covering potential pass receivers and knocking the ball to the ground.

A Mansfield fumble on its own 20-yard stripe set the stage for the Elyria touchdown. Martin Henke bobbled the ball and John Sheldon recovered for the Crimson club.

Two line plays and a pass placed the pigskin on the Mansfield three and two plays later Al Meyer slashed through the line into pay dirt. Gay Marsh's attempted placement for the point was wide.

Smarting under the sting of not having registered a first down, the Tygers clawed back midway in the second chapter to drive over the Elyria goal line.

Mansfield penetrated to the Elyria five-yard line on a drive from midfield, but lost the ball on downs. Henke tried a field goal. It fell short and Elyria took the ball.

Dick Winbigler recovered an Elyria fumble on the second play on the visitors' five and four plays later Jim Templeton ploughed into pay territory from the three yard line.

Adam Brandt split the uprights with a place kick to give the Tygers the advantage. Mansfield played to protect that lead most of the time.

Elyria, led by Meyer, tried desperately to connect on passes during the second half. The Tygers, however, surprised their followers by employing a tight aerial defense, something that had been lacking in the other contest.

* * *

Mansfield fumbled several times and it made the line put up one of the greatest fights of the year.

The affray was a gruelling tussle with numerous penalties called on both teams. Mansfield lost 70 yards and Elyria 40. The Crimson team had eight first downs, while the Tygers were collecting four. It marked the first time this season that an opponent has chalked up more first downs.

Whippets Stop Ashland Team

Daugherty's Place Kick Is Victory Margin.

ASHLAND — Shelby high's Whippets are leading the North Central Ohio conference race today with a 7 to 6 victory scored last night over Ashland before a near-capacity crowd here, in the first loop game of the season.

Ashland tallied in the first period on a 40-yard drive paced by Jim Puglisi who raced 20 yards to the Shelby 10-yard marker. Several plays later Bob Puglisi plunged over for a touchdown from the three-yard mark.

On the try for point Puglisi held the ball for Hesson's kick, but the Whippets swarmed through and broke up the play. Hesson lateralled the ball to Puglisi but he was smothered by the Shelby linemen.

Junior Bonecutter and Bob Laubie led Shelby's winning touchdown march of 40 yards in the third quarter with Bonecutter scoring from the six-yard mark on a line plunge. Bill Daugherty booted the extra and deciding point.

Shelby missed three other scoring chances and Ashland one. Shelby's best bid was broken up with a fumble on the 10-yard line.

The pronghorn antelope is endowed with the keenest eyesight of any big game animal in America. He seeks his safety solely in his fleetness of foot, being credited with 60 miles per hour by the American Museum of Natural History. The state of Wyoming contains the largest number.

Two mighty good shooting rules that bear repeating are: "Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger," and "Do not mix gun powder with alcohol."

Great guns! You'll find a lot of them at Yuncker's, including such famous makes as Winchester, Remington, L. C. Smith, Ithaca "Featherweight" and all the others, and you can buy any of them on Yuncker's Easy Payment Plan. Ask us about it.

Carl Dreutzer, Chicago lawyer and sportsman brought back from Alaska three baby walruses for the Brookside Zoo in Chicago. He fed them from a bottle enroute and they are the only baby walruses in captivity.

Decoys are almost as important a part of the duck and goose hunter's equipment as his gun. Because of the vast increase of the number of hunters, waterfowl are more wary and alert, and decoys are necessary to bring them within shooting range. They also prove to be an effective conservation measure, as the waterfowl are shot at close range reducing the number of crippies.

To figure the approximate age to which animals may live, multiply the number of years needed to attain full growth by five. You will have roughly the average life span.

Western Shells are known far and wide for their extra power, extra long range, and uniform patterns. They provide the exclusive Western Short Shot String, Sealtite Wads and their non-corrosive primers keep your gun free from rust. Complete stocks of Super-X as well as the equally celebrated X-pert shells are ready at Yuncker's.

Two women of Bridgewater, Mass., found a heron almost choked on a herring, on the shore of Carver's Pond. Finding the bird with a full sized herring sticking from its beak, and strangling, one woman grasped the fish by the tail, the other holding the bird, they removed the herring and thus saved the bird's life.

Action In Mansfield-Elyria Contest

Jim Templeton of Mansfield is shown above as he smashed through right tackle for a four-yard gain in the fourth period. The Tygers upset the veteran Elyria club, 7 to 6, in a gruelling battle at Stadium field before some 3,500 fans last night.

Marion Breaks Crestline High's Winning Streak, 20-6

By BOB FLOHR

CRESTLINE — It rested on the shoulders of a pint-sized Marion halfback to knock the Crestline high school grid machine from the undefeated and untied Ohio high scholastic list.

* * *

The pint-sized halfback was Tom Schuler of Marion St. Mary's, who scored all three touchdowns as the parochial school handed the Onondagas a 20 to 6 defeat before a near-capacity crowd here under the lights last night.

* * *

Coach Merle Hutson's Crestline team entered last night's contest sporting a record of 10 straight victories.

Schuler scored Marion's first touchdown early in the first period, plunging over from the three-yard stripe. Marion took the ball on it's own 15 and on consecutive plays carried it to Crestline's 23.

A Terzo to Schuler pass for the ball on Crestline's 10, from where it was advanced to the three-yard line on several plays. Schuler scored the extra on a sweep.

Marion's second tally came early in the second quarter when Schuler raced into the end zone to snare a 40-yard pass, heaved by Terzo. Terzo kicked for the extra point.

It was Schuler again in the third period when the Irish of Marion scored their third and final tally. A blocked kick gave the Irish the ball on Crestline's 28-yard stripe.

On three plays Schuler advanced the ball to Crestline's 12 from where Terzo advanced it to the 4-yard stripe on an end run. A bad pass kept the Irish from scoring, but on the next play Schuler skirted the Crestline end zone to score.

A Terzo to Schuler pass foh the extra point was ruled no good as it was caught outside the end zone.

A Crestline aerial attack from its own 15 to the Marion 7 set the stage in the second quarter for Crestline's lone tally. After a six-yard penalty, a Fisher to Stump pass was ruled complete on Marion's two-yard stripe by interference.

* * *

On the next play Fisher plunged over from the two. Fisher failed to complete his toss for extra point.

* * *

Marion threatened again in the final period driving deep into Crestline territory, but Keubler intercepted a Terzo pass on his own 9 to end the drive. Marion made 12 first downs and Crestline 7.

Team Takes Flag

CLEVELAND—(AP)—One of the most amazing triumphs in baseball history was an accomplished fact today.

The Detroit Tigers, whom nobody gave a hope of getting anywhere last spring, had clinched the American league flag and were only playing out their string here before meeting the Cincinnati Reds in the world series starting next Wednesday.

Perfectly in keeping with their bizarre record for the season, the Tigers won their deciding victory yesterday behind a florid young rookie named Floyd Giebell, who shut out the Indians, 2 to 0, and who won't even be eligible to pitch against Cincinnati.

Rudy York, first baseman, supplied the conclusive runs off Bobby Feller with a towering home run into the left field stands.

Feller gave up only three hits, and one of those was a fluke double by Greenberg which Roy Weatherly of Cleveland lost in the sun. But the great Bobby was licked, nevertheless, by an unknown rookie, who probably was the most surprised individual in Ohio when Manager Del Baker told him to get out there and pitch.

Last night the Detroit players, one by one, came up to see Owner Walter O. Briggs and to offer their congratulations. He has been a sick man for the last eight months and he was in a wheel chair yesterday at the game. His son, "Spike" Briggs, said this was what his father had been living for, mostly.

Later, each of the players admitted that at the season's start they had no idea of winning the pennant.

Hank Greenberg didn't know whether he could play the outfield. Dick Bartell, the veteran shortstop, didn't know whether his health would hold out for the season. Nobody would have bet a nickel that Schoolboy Rowe would win five games—much less sixteen.

"There's never been a club with a finer fighting spirit," said Manager Del Baker, who, incidentally, might be classified at baseball's unknown man. "They did everything I asked of them. What Giebell did to the Indians was no more than the others have done all the way."

It was a tremendous gamble on Baker's part—starting the boy who had pitched only one game for the Tigers since reporting from Buffalo. The game was vital, and it was logical to expect that Feller would be at his brilliant best. But the Tigers' luck held to the last, and Giebell turned in a veritable masterpiece.

The Cleveland players took their elimination quietly. There was no sign of the blow-off that had been half expected between Manager Oscar Vitt and the players who rebelled on him in mid-season. It might possibly come yet, but probably not. The realization of what their internal squabble cost appears to have stunned them.

PAM— "Something Important!" By A. W. Brewerton

THE OLD COLONEL WAS DEEPLY INTERESTED IN PAM'S ACCOUNT OF HER NOONDAY EXPERIENCE.
I JUST DIDN'T HAVE A CHANCE TO PHONE YOU, COL CAREY- COULDN'T EVEN CALL DAVID
YOU DID ABSOLUTELY RIGHT, PAMELA. I WAS CONCERNED ONLY BECAUSE I FEARED SOMETHING SERIOUS MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED TO YOU!
9-28
THIS IS A POWERFUL AND DANGEROUS RING THAT YOU WERE MIXED UP WITH, YOU KNOW.
YES, IT CERTAINLY IS! DAVID SAYS THEY'LL STOP AT NOTHING - THEFT, BRIBERY, BLACKMAIL, EVEN MURDER! THEIR AIM IS TO CRIPPLE OUR DEFENSE WORK ENOUGH TO CAUSE FATAL DELAY
DAVID'S AFRAID THEY HAVE ALREADY BEEN PAID THAT MONEY - HE'D HOPED TO TRACE A LOT OF THEM FROM SHADOWING THIS PAY-OFF MAN - PARTICULARLY ONE OF-FICAL, HIGH UP IN THE GOVERNMENT, WHOM HE SUSPECTS OF SELLING VALUABLE IN-FORMATION!
THE DESPIC-ABLE TRAITOR!
LATER, BACK AT HER DESK, PAM IS TROUBLED A VAGUE THOUGHT BACK IN HER MIND SEEMS TRYING TO TAKE SHAPE.
SEEMS TO ME -- THERE'S SOMETHING -- SOME-THING IMPORTANT - ABOUT THAT MAN I'VE NEGLECTED TO TELL DAVID! SOME-THING THAT MIGHT HELP!?
WAS SHE RIGHT? LITTLE WONDER. WITH ALL THAT HAS OCCURRED IN THE LAST 24 HOURS, THAT SOMETHING SHOULD HAVE SLIPPED HER MEMORY!

Traders Study Survey of Board Which Says Industry Spurting Again.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Stocks drifted over a slightly uneven terrain in today's early market dealings.

Boardrooms studied the survey of the national industrial conference board which said that industrial and commercial buying throughout the country, after turning up in July, currently was making more rapid forward strides.

The board's adjusted index of the value of new orders, which stood at 117 per cent of the 1926 average in June, rose to 230 during July and to 141 in August. The index reached a peak of 164 last October.

Notice also was taken of the federal reserve board summary disclosing department store sales of the nation, in the week ended Sept. 21, topped the comparable week a year ago by 10 per cent. The same year-to-year improvement was registered in the preceding week.

Districts reporting the widest increases over 1939 were San Francisco, Cleveland, Richmond and Dallas.

NAZIS LOSE 133 PLANES IN RAID

British Report Overnight Assault of Germans Proves Costly.

reported continued RAF raids on the "invasion ports" along the German held coast, and said other flights of bombers had attacked across the German frontier, striking at communications lines.

The operations against the German bases along the coast were described again as "large scale."

In areas apart from London casualties were described officially as small. Bombs were reported to have fallen in South Lancashire, Midland towns, parts of southwestern England, and "several districts between London and the south coast."

Germans Report 'Strong Battles'

BERLIN — (U.P.) — German reconnaissance planes returning from England today reported a great blanket of smoke over London as new waves of bombers were sent across the English channel to sustain the heavy attacks of the past 24 hours.

The German high command, reviewing incessant day and night attacks, said that British harbors, factories, gasworks and power stations had been bombed.

It was admitted in the daily communique that British planes last night bombed "civilian targets" in west Germany but it was said bombs were "dropped without plan."

In "strong air battles" yesterday and last night, the high command claimed, 101 British planes were destroyed while 38 German planes were listed as missing. (The British air ministry claimed that 133 German planes were shot down yesterday.)

The high command said that many fires blazed "everywhere" in England and that in the Midlands a munitions factory had been "destructively hit" with bombs of the heaviest calibre.

It was claimed that German long range artillery, firing on Dover from the French channel coast, had hit three merchantmen in Dover harbor and that two of them subsequently sank.

New Nazi Base Bombed by RAF

LONDON — (U.P.) — The air ministry said today that British bombers dropping high explosives at the rate of five a minute had started great fires at the new Nazi invasion base of Lorient on the French Atlantic Ocean coast.

Smashing at German objectives from the west coast of France to munitions factories deep in the Reich, the British squadrons reported that an 'intense" three and one-half hour attack had left the Lorient harbor in flames that could be seen 70 miles away.

Lorient lies southeast of Ireland, providing an ideal submarine base, and with Brest is one of the most westerly points yet attacked in force by British bombers.

Other British bombing planes ranged deeply into Germany, damaging railroad yards and munitions plants as far as Dusseldorf, the ministry said.

In the attack on Lorient, the ministry added:

"Fires spread rapidly in the dockside buildings and others were started near a block of warehouses on the east bank.

"One huge blaze engulfed buildings near the harbor power station and lit up a great part of the docks and the Scorff river.

"Following raiders were guided by the fires and added to the damage. Incendiary bombs set a timberyard ablaze."

Lorient is a fortified seaport and military base of perhaps 50,000 population, with harbor facilities for both commercial and naval ships. It has big naval establishments and ship building yards.
